Spring is here and there is a new kid on the block, in an old favourite of a theatre. For the first time, Sydney's State Theatre plays host to an exciting new entertainment event with a great line-up of artists. Sydney, please welcome Good Music Month.

The State Theatre is one of Sydney's most respected and iconic venues, entertaining music lovers for almost 80 years. With a rich and diverse history of music and entertainment, there is no other venue better suited to host the inaugural Good Music Month. These events will celebrate how good music makes us feel, and the State Theatre will throw open its doors to welcome music lovers looking for a wonderful collage of the old and new.

The State Theatre is committed to making Good Music Month an exciting annual part of the Sydney live entertainment calendar and to kick it off in 2008, there are a number of Australian favourites and even an adopted Aussie as part of the line-up.

Spend an evening with Leo Sayer with his 25-piece orchestra celebrating almost four decades of hits. The Whitlams perform their greatest hits and more with the 30-piece female orchestra Symphonie Des Femmes. Deep Blue, new to the Sydney music scene, is the orchestra re-imagined for the 21st century. Relive the '70s with Morning Of The Earth, the original film and music of the 1972 iconic surf film live in concert. Good Music Month then culminates in a special Gala charity performance with Olivia Newton-John and Friends to raise money for the Olivia Newton-John Cancer and Wellness Centre Appeal.
